WAUKEGAN FOX LAKE RAILROAD

Robert D. Wynn to Interest
Capital to Build Road West from Waukegan

FROST TO RETURN ROAD

Road Sold to Frost With Agreement that Road Would be Built Upon the Completion into Milwaukee

Robert D. Wynn, for some time "out" on electric railroad matters as the result of departure into another line of work, Silurian water management, is looming to the fore in a project for railroad building from Waukegan to the lake region and he feels that the time is here when his long cherished hopes may be realized.

There are prospects of the old Fox Lake railroad being returned to the management of Mr. Wynn and others he may interest in it and developed in accordance with his original plans.

In fact, matters have progressed to the extent that he has already taken up with A. C. Frost and the electric road receivers, the matter of getting the local line back into his control, and he states it may be done. Furthermore, he has already interested financiers who have built seventeen railroads, and they have promised him they will build the road if he raises one-fourth of the money needed.

So far as getting the local line back, he states it is quite possible. The road is not owned by the C. & M. railroad. It is in the hands of the receivers of the road only through their acting as receivers for A. C. Frost's private affairs. Of course if Mr. Frost's private affairs reached the state where the receivers had to confiscate the Fox Lake line, it couldn't be done, but this is not probable.

Mr. Frost has told Mr. Wynn that he would do all he could to help promote the plan which Mr. Wynn has now taken up.

The plan now conceived will cost $1,500,000 to execute and the men he has interested state if he will raise $300,000, they will raise the rest and build the road west into the lake region. The proposed route, to be selected finally by the promoters, will take the road west from Waukegan to Gurnee, Grayslake, Fox Lake, Marengo and Woodstock, in McHenry county, and possibly to Lake Geneva.

The plan seems feasible to the promoters because the road will be able to connect with the Elgin-Aurora-Belvidere-Marengo lines and they feel the roads would feed to this lake shore line because of the great attractions in this section, including the Naval Training station, Fort Sheridan, Zion City, etc.

Mr. Wynn has taken hold of the plan with a zeal and states that he will feel out the people and see if they still wish the road built west as they have in past years, for there has always been a demand and request that the line be extended.

The territory is such that it is believed the road would pay great in passenger and freight service, and if the people along the route will take preferred stock which will be tendered them it is felt that the road will be built and the long talked of connection with the lake region made.

Under the terms by which Mr. Wynn sold to Frost, the latter was to build the Fox Lake line west when he had completed the main line into Milwaukee. That is now done but the extension west doesn't look possible under the receivership condition, hence the plan to take up the new project as outlined.

BENTON DRY; WILL HAVE A SALOON ANYWAY

Safe from the obtrusions of Illinois law which made Benton township dry and fending off the Lake county officers, A. Neinaber of Winthrop Harper, made dry by Zion City votes which also created a dry township, is erecting a concrete saloon building just across the state line in Wisconsin.

He ran a saloon for years in Winthrop Harbor, and the village voted to remain wet. Now, however the town being dry the fight has been given up and the nearest saloon north of Waukegan will be at the state lines.

The place is being built according to the Aiken concrete construction method.

CELEBRATES SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wells Entertain Friends
Saturday evening, October 3

On Saturday evening, October 3, 1908, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wells, one mile south of Millburn was the scene of a very pleasant home gathering, the occasion being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day.

About fifty availed themselves of the opportunity to spend the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Wells. All evidently were in the best of humor and the early part of the evening was spent with jokes and social conversation.

About eight o'clock all repaired to the dining room to partake of the wedding feast, and such a bountiful spread one is seldom invited to attend. Such quantities and varieties of meats, salads, cakes, fruits and candies was enough to tempt the appetite of the most fickle and to say that the tables groaned under the weight of eatables but mildly expresses it. Needless to say everyone did full justice to such a banquet.

After supper the gentlemen repaired to the smoking room where they spent some time in that pastime so dear to the heart of man. They finally joined the ladies and all went merry as a marriage bell. Ernest Wells gave the guests a treat by giving a few fine selections on a phonograph of which he is the possessor.

Those present and list of presents are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Savage, father and mother of the bride, five silver dollars; Mr. and Mrs. Austin Savage and Mr. Mortie Savage, silver jolly server; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Savage, pair fancy linen towels; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McGuire, fancy imported teapot; Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Webb and daughter, brussels rug; Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Hulet of Union Grove, one half dozen silver teaspoons; Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Smart, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gillings, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. A. Brown and Mr. Curtis Wells all of Waukegan, a handsome leather rocker, dolly and fine linen towel; Mr. and Mrs. James Webb and son of Richmond, picture; Mr. and Mrs. Chase Webb of Waukegan, hand embroidered center piece; Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Frazier, fancy imported teapot; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. MacNey, Troy, New York, solid silver salad set; Mr. and Mrs. Wilson King and son, one half dozen silver desert spoons; Mr. and Mrs. J. Bonner, one dozen fine linen napkins; Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Van Patten, silver bread knife and box cigars; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kelly, silver crumb tray and scraper. Others present were Ernest Wells, Spencer and Gordon Wells; Miss Ethel McGuire and Miss Minnie Carney.

Only one thing happened to mar the pleasure of the evening, Mrs. A. D. Webb was taken ill very suddenly a short time after her arrival and it was necessary to summon a physician, and although she became some what easier she was unable to leave her bed all the evening and her presence was greatly missed from the throng.

About twelve o'clock each gave to the host and hostess a hearty hand shake and departed for their various homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Wells many more happy anniversaries and hoping that they might all be permitted to join with them in celebrating their golden wedding.

MILWAUKEE FIGHTS ARE KILLED BY GOV. DAVIDSON

The fight game is dead in Milwaukee, according to dispatches received from there Wednesday night. Governor Davidson notified Sheriff Knell that the Papke-Kelly fight set for Oct. 15, must not be permitted, and that further violation of the law against prize fighting must be stopped. The Governor merely said that "complaint had been made that a prize fight had been arranged."

The sheriff says that he will obey the Governor's orders, and he notified Harlan Zea of the Milwaukee Boxing club to call off the bout.

The fighting game in Wisconsin was practically shut down for several years, but in 1900 it was revived and six round bouts were permitted. When the Ketchel-Papke ten round fight was scheduled during the summer and held without objection from the state officials it was believed that limited round fights would not be interfered with again, and the three local boxing clubs had arranged for good cards this winter. The first of these was to be the Papke-Kelly go next week Thursday.

In an interview with Mr. Hugo Kelly Thursday morning he stated that if the fight can not be pulled off in Milwaukee, arrangements will be made to go to San Francisco. In the meantime, however, the training will be kept up at the training quarters at C. E. Harman's, Bluff Lake, where every afternoon large crowds gather to witness the training.

SUICIDE AT FORT SHERIDAN

Edmund W. Baldwin, a Rat Killer, Committed Deed
by Shooting Himself

DR. GRIFFITH FINDS CORPSE

He Was Sixty Years Old and Had Been in the Neighborhood of Highwood for Several Days

Raymond Baldwin, of 607 Oak avenue, Chicago, shot himself Monday at Fort Sheridan. He was sixty years of age and had been in the neighborhood of Highwood and Fort Sheridan the last few days engaged in his occupation of exterminating rats and mice.

His body was found by Dr. Griffith, chief physician at the reservation, in the riding hall of the fort, a large enclosure where the soldiers practice shooting and horseback riding.

A thirty-eight caliber American Arms company revolver lay at his side and told the tale.

The few people about the fort who had become acquainted with Baldwin said he visited Highwood frequently and drank heavily. A verdict of suicide was given by the coroner's jury.

The corpse was taken to the post morgue immediately after the finding and Adjutant Brown notified. As the deed was committed inside of the reservation local authorities were powerless. Uncle Sam held sway.

Although the man is supposed to have committed suicide in the morning, the body was not discovered until late in the afternoon, when Lieutenant Griffith was conducting a party of visitors through the hall.

In a corner the lieutenant found the body with the head leaning against the wall. At first Griffith thought the man was asleep or intoxicated. Then he noticed a bullet wound in the middle of the forehead and a revolver laying near and saw that the man was dead.

In the pockets of the suicide was found two cards giving the name of Edmund W. Baldwin, 607 Oak avenue. A purse containing one cent, a bunch of keys and a bottle half filled with whisky were the only other articles in the clothing.

Dr. Griffith, as will be remembered, was the first to secure a confession from the German named Amann, who murdered his foster son near the reservation last spring.

BOY KICKS GUN AND SAVES SUICIDE OF HIS FATHER

Hearing the click of the hammer on a shot gun as the weapon was cocked for use, the son of Fred Johnson of Libertyville opened the door of a bedroom to see his father just about to blow out his brains.

The boy kicked vigorously out with his foot just in time to send the barrel of the gun away from his father's head, it is said, and the shot rattled the door jamb with a dull roar that could be heard for some distance.

Johnson is a former prominent railroad man. Until three weeks ago he was road master for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad company between Libertyville and Janesville.

Three weeks ago as the result of official friction he lost his job, it is reported, and has been despondent ever since. Tuesday after his return from a trip to Chicago he went to his room with his shot gun and made the chronicled attempt on his life.

The sixteen year old son is the hero of the incident. No arrests were made and the facts would never have become public had not a member of the family talked on the streets of Libertyville about it.

NOTICE OF REGISTRATION

Registration days will be held in Antioch on Tuesday, October 13, and Tuesday, October 27. Be sure that your name is on the list.

For the convenience of those who can not come on the days above mentioned, the poll list will be hung up in the post office, and those who find their names omitted should write them thereon.

Naturalized on the Arm.

An Italian went to the civil service commissioners' rooms to be examined for a laborer's position. He answered most of the questions correctly. Finally they asked him if he had ever been naturalized. He seemed a bit puzzled, but at last his face lighted up. "Ah, I know what you mean. Scratcha de arm. Yes, lasta week."

GOURT APPOINTS RECEIVER

Injunction Proceeding Result in Court Decision for Receivership

TO HANDLE ALL MONEYS

Will Also Direct Future Operations in Filling at Naval Training School at North Chicago

Judge Charles H. Donnelly of the circuit court Wednesday morning appointed Mayor Alexander Robertson of Highland Park as receiver for J. M. Bower in his contract with the government of the United States for placing 12,000 cubic yards of sand filling on the government breakwater at the naval training station located just below North Chicago with the usual powers of a receiver in chancery and accordingly Mr. Robertson was authorized to hire the necessary dredge, equipment and men, to perform the work and to obtain payment from the government for work under contract and to disburse so much of the money as may be necessary in payment of the labor employed on the work or in the paying of a lump sum per day for the pumping of sand to fill the breakwater.

It is further adjudged that Mr. Robertson as receiver should hold the balance of the money received from the government and any money he may receive from Mr. J. M. Bower until further order of the court. It was further adjudged that Mr. Bower should turn over the money already drawn by him from the government on account of the contract.

The receiver's bonds which amount to three thousand dollars will be filed with Circuit Clerk L. O. Brockway.

The action upon the part of the court was due to a failure upon the part of Mr. Bower to keep a contract with the North Shore Fuel and Supply Company it is alleged.

When Mr. Bower secured the naval training station contract a subcontract was let to the North Shore Fuel and Supply Company. Mr. Bower, at that time contracted to turn over vouchers received by him from the government for the work which was to be expended under their direction.

Recently Mr. Bower is charged with having received vouchers.

THE MAN WITH THE LAUGH IS AT NORTH CHICAGO

The Waukegan Sun has the following about a former Antioch boy:

His friends say that Walter Taylor of North Chicago has everything and every person lashed to the third rail with an express coming when it comes to laughs.

They believe that Walter Taylor has the champion laugh machine and aver that his laugh is so catching that those who hear must join in and play chorus whether they will or not.

The Taylor laugh is described as fortissimo with a tempo that would put anything but a Waukegan automobile fracturing the north shore speed ordinances to the blush. The laugh has no speed clutch whatever and runs so smoothly that it takes the bumps with the airy grace of a wood nymph and starts the cop corner to cackling himself.

The late Charles Crocker always hitherto held the palm for having a laugh bug, and Julius Hoppe, who once made a poor show good down at Schwartz with his laugh and Paul MacGuffin, who is the champion long distance laughter, are no slouches.

Taylor has a laugh that is good for anything, however, from indigestion to the pip, and it is conceded that he spreads more cheer in a holy minute than Bally and Austin did in "The Top o' the World" all last season.

His Little Family.

Families of French-Canadian farmers often run into large numbers, as is demonstrated by the following written order received by the proprietor of a Quebec shoe store: "You will put some shoes on my little families like this, and send by San Jameson, the carrier: One man, Jean St. Jean (me), 42 years; one woman, Sophie St. Jean (she), 41 years; Hermesdes and Leonore, 19 years; Honore, 18 years; Celina, 17 years; Narcisse, Octavia and Phyllis, 16 years; Olivia, 14 years; Phillippa, 13 years; Alexandre, 12 years; Rosina, 11 years; Bruno, 10 years; Pierre, 9 years; Eugene, 8 years; Adrien, 6 years; Camille, 5 years; Zoel, 4 years; Joseph, 3 years; Moise, 2 years; Muriel, 1 year; Hilalre. Marine Insurance.
Marine insurance is the oldest kind of modern insurance. Its principles were first employed in the fourteenth century by the merchants of Barcelona, in Spain, when that city was the capital of the kingdom of Catalonia and when its hardy mariners were second to none in the world. About the same time, and also at Barcelona, the famous code of maritime laws known as the "consulato del mar" was promulgated, which is the foundation of the present shipping laws of every country.

CONSPIRACY IN MILK SEEN

Milk Dealers of Waukegan Combined to put Price of Milk Way Up

Has trust of such proportion been affected in Waukegan among milk dealers that they have combined to show the price of milk up unnecessarily?

Has that "trust" reached the stage where possibly, state or national interference would be justified and possible?

Are the farmers really getting more for their milk than they did not long ago and if they are not, why has the retail price of milk gone up right along?

If there is no "trust" why have certain milkmen been almost threatened because they sell milk cheaper and why have they been offered money from other dealers if they would only join and adopt the advanced price?

These are some of the questions which are brought forth as the result of a statement of a local milk dealer who is classed as the only independent dealer in the city, the only man in the alleged combine.

This dealer has some most interesting and sensational statements and told a representative some of them this week and while they may incur the displeasure of some of the dealers when they read them.

Here in substance is what the dealer in question said.

"I understand that the farmers are not getting any more for their milk than they did before the advance was made by the retailers to the consumers. However, I have started in business and I am selling for 6 cents a quart instead of 7 cents as other dealers are doing. I get 7 cents for the small bottle of cream. I am making money at this price and am satisfied."

"They have been after me for some time to join with them in their association in order to make me shove up the price of milk but I have refused to do so for I am satisfied with making what I can on my sales at present."

"When I refused to join or shove up the prices they even offered to pay me something for the milk over what I am making in order to have me assure them I would raise the price. I have stuck it out, however, and intend to remain in business despite some of the threats that I will be driven out in one way or another."

DOUBLE HEADER AT LIBERTYVILLE LAST SUNDAY

Last Sunday a delegation of Antioch base ball fans went to Libertyville to witness the last of a series of three games between the Antioch Stars and North Chicago White Sox.

A double header was scheduled for the day for North Chicago. The first game was between the Libertyville Browns and North Chicago and was exciting from start to finish. It was a seven inning game and up to the last half of the seventh the score stood a tie at 2 to 2 when the Browns scored one run, winning 3 to 2.

Then came the game between Antioch and North Chicago, or rather Waukegan, the team being composed of mostly Waukegan players, with three of North Chicago's regular men. Lindquist of the Waukegan Cubs, who boasts of being Lake County's crack pitcher, was in the box with the Cubs catcher behind the bat.

But regardless of the proposition they were up against, our boys held them down to a tie game till the eighth inning when they run up against a streak of bad luck and North Chicago scored, during the remainder, two innings, five runs, which gave them the game by a score of 12 to 7.

Had North Chicago had their regular players with them there would have been nothing to it for our boys have on previous occasions proved themselves by far the stronger team of the two and North Chicago, realizing this fact, resorted to trickery in signing up Waukegan semi-pro players to enable them to win the game.

However, even under the existing circumstances, if Antioch had had the proper support in the out field the result would have been different, the game being sacrificed through errors.

HELD IN BOND OF $1,000

John Gilpin Must Pay $1,000
Peace Bond or Else
Go to Jail

HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Federal Authorities Are on His Track, and After Present Case is Disposed of
They will Have Him Arrested

When John Gilpin serves his year in the Lake county jail as the result of inability to get bonds in connection with the peace warrant which was issued against him by Justice Weiss on request of his wife and father-in-law, Colonel Vidvard, of Grass Lake, he will be taken into custody by the federal authorities and will spend many years in a federal prison.

The charge on which the latter arrest will be made is "sending threatening letters through the mails," the specific cases being letters which he wrote to his father-in-law, Col. Vidvard, threatening to kill him. Any number of these letters were received by the colonel and the federal authorities, hearing of it, have demanded that they be turned over to them so they may take action against Gilpin. They have the letters and are waiting for Gilpin to get his peace bond of $1,000 or serve out his year when they will arrest him.

The law is that they can send him to prison for each offense and as there are several such letters, he faces a long term in case they prove their case and there seems no question about that part.

Col. Vidvard was in Waukegan Tuesday and stated that while he had done all in his power to help his son-in-law, he had, tired of it and the threats against his life have changed his demeanor and he is willing to have the young man punished for he is in bodily danger so long as he is free.

Gilpin served a term in the Chicago bridewell for slashing a friend with a razor and because his wife and father-in-law would not help him out of the trouble he became angry and the threats followed. Col. Vidvard is one of the finest men one would care to meet and regrets the disgrace brought upon him.

KANE COUNTY MAN INVENTS MACHINE FOR FILLING SILOS

After months of conscientious labor, induced by recognizing the need of a machine with which to fill a silo, F. W. Strohm of Wayne has just completed a machine which meets the need, and he secured a patent on the appliance at Washington a few days ago. The model machine which Mr. Strohm constructed after drawing the plans for the silo filler is now in use on the Wayne farm of the patentee, and farmers of the vicinity have been examining it, and many have expressed their intention of securing one.

Mr. Strohm has found his invention so successful in doing the work intended that he has decided to place the machine on the market, and he will plan its manufacture as soon as possible. Some time ago Mr. Strohm placed a silo on his farm, and when the harvest time approached he looked around for a better method of filling the receptacle.

The old method, with men spreading the fodder as it was blown into the silo, was the only one available, but the work must be done under difficulties, in the dark hole, with little air to work in. Therefore, Mr. Strohm evolved the idea of doing the work mechanically.

In order to perfect his ideas, and put them into form, he went to the Y. M. C. A. last fall, and received instruction from A. B. Leet, teacher of mechanical drawing. Mr. Leet gave him the benefit of his knowledge, and at the same time enabled the ambitious student to work out his plans.

After some months of study and thought he perfected the plans on paper, and then the model machine was built. The patent was granted to Mr. Strohm, and he is now endeavoring to put it on the market.

Every farmer and machinist who has seen the machine in operation states that it is excellent for the intended purpose. The machine spreads the fodder by air pressure, furnished by the "blower" used in elevating it to the top of the silo, whence it is removed to the capacious hold below. The work is done systematically, and evenly, and therefore is superior to the work done by human agents who are handicapped by the lack of air and light.

SYNOPSIS.

The Escapade opens, not in the romance preceding the marriage of Ellen Elocum, a Puritan miss, and Lord Carrington of England, but in their life after settling in England. The scene is placed, just following the revolution, in Carrington castle in England. The Carringtons, after a house party, engaged in a family tilt, caused by jealousy. Lord Carrington and his wife each made charges of faithlessness against the other in continuation of the quarrel. First objecting against playing cards with the guests, Lady Carrington agreed to cut cards with Lord Strathgate, whose attentions to Ellen had become a sore point with Carrington. The loss of $100.00 failed to perturb her, and her husband then cut for his wife's I. O. U. and his honor. Carrington winning. The incident closed except that a liking for each other apparently arose between Lady Carrington and Lord Strathgate.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

They had come to the edge of the terrace. Through a rift in the foliage they had a fair view of the center of the arbor. Through the same rift the moonlight fell and displayed two figures. One with his back toward her was her husband. The other facing the couple was Lady Cecily. They were close together talking earnestly. Ellen clenched her hands and incautiously stepped into the moonlight. Lady Cecily caught a glimpse of her before Strathgate drew her back. Here was her opportunity. The distance was too great to enable the watchers to hear what was being said, but they could see.

"My dear Bernard," she said, "I may call you that for old times' sake?"

"Yes, yes," said Carrington, "would that those old times might come again!"

"It would please me," said Lady Cecily, "I cannot bear to see you yoked with such a rude, uncultured hoyden."

"Nay," he began protesting. "And she played that game with Strathgate. It was all a matter of pre-arrangement. No money was to pass. She hath no need to give Strathgate money. His purse and all he has are at her disposal."

My lord gritted his teeth and clenched his hands.

"I would like to kill him," he said, "and by heaven I shall before long, or he me, and then she can take him with my blood on his hands."

"I would not have you die, Bernard," said Lady Cecily tenderly, at that moment catching sight of the other two. "Don't think that your life is wasted because a foolish, wicked woman has well nigh wrecked it. You are very dear to me."

"You are the only true heart I have ever known," protested Carrington.

And then Lady Cecily palpably fell against him. What else could a gentleman do under the circumstances but enfold her in his arms? The arms of Lady Cecily stole upward. She lifted her face to his.

"Kiss me," she murmured, faintly. And although Carrington had not intended anything of that kind, yet being tempted, he hesitated and was lost. He kissed her full and fair in the moonlight.

"Have you seen enough, Lady Carrington?" whispered Strathgate from the other side.

"Enough!" said Ellen, choking with jealous rage. "My lord, I leave this castle to-night. May I depend upon you to help me?"

"I shall help you," said Strathgate, turning and leading her away, "with all that I have. My life, my fortune, my sacred honor are yours."

"You mistake me, my lord. I go back to Philadelphia. There is a ship belonging to me, a merchant ship in the harbor of Portsmouth nearly ready to sail for America. If you will take me there and see me on board, I shall be everlastingly grateful to you."

My lord thought deeply. Lady Ellen evidently considered his proffered service purely a disinterested one. It would hardly be wise to deceive her now. Once he got her away and in his power, it would go hard with him if he could not persuade her, or constrain her, to his own wishes. His role at present was to agree with whatever she proposed.

"I will do my best to carry out your wishes," he said, heartily.

And as Ellen stumbled and fell at the foot of the steps he took advantage of the occasion to support her with his arm.

"You are weak, ill, faint," he said, almost carrying her up the steps in the bright moonlight before she had a chance to protest.

It so happened that Lady Cecily and Carrington, coming across the mall caught a full view of the incident.

"What would you have me do?"

said Strathgate as he and Lady Ellen reached the top of the terrace.

"I would not have you lay hands on me again, my lord. I am in full vigor and able to serve myself in that."

"Forgive me!" said Strathgate. "I thought you were faint."

"No more of it," returned Ellen. "I would have you meet me at two of the clock here to-night on the terrace equipped for traveling."

"Do you ride away, madam?"

"I shall take my lord's traveling carriage. Can you drive, Lord Strathgate?"

"I am the best whip in England," he said boastfully.

At this juncture Carrington and Lady Cecily joined the others on the terrace.

"Have you been taking the air, Lady Carrington, after your exertions in the dance?" queried Lady Cecily with mocking sweetness.

"We came to seek Carrington and yourself," interposed Strathgate swiftly.

CHAPTER V.

A Midnight Conversation.

Once more the little boudoir. Once more Ellen and Bernard alone together.

"Well, madam," began Carrington, coldly, under violent constraint, although passion was seething and bubbling in his veins, "do you think that you have disgraced me sufficiently to-night?"

"But I was only obeying your instructions."

"My instructions!" exclaimed my lord; "and pray what were they?"

"To be like other women; to dance, to play, to—"

"You exceeded them, I think," interrupted Carrington, sneeringly.

"That many things are permitted to a man, to a husband, which are forbidden to a woman, his wife."

"I recognize no distinction between us, sir."

"This," said my lord, loftily, "is beside the question. What possessed you to play with Strathgate to-night?"

"The money," returned his wife, "was mine. I had a right to risk it. I might ask what possessed you to play?"

"Nonsense!" said Carrington, fiercely. "I know well enough that your game with Strathgate was only play. It was simply a plan concocted between you to mock me and amuse yourselves."

"My lord, you insult me," cried Ellen, her face flaming.

"It is fact that carries the insult, madam. I make the charge on good authority. You were overheard ar—"

"I cannot be discourteous to my guests."

ranging the details," persisted my lord, carried beyond the facts by his indignation.

"Upon whose authority?" inquired Ellen.

"Lady Cecily's."

"And you can take her word against mine?" responded his wife, bitterly.

"Very well, my lord, I shall descend to justify myself further."

"I would be useless to attempt it."

"Indeed, and what made you risk your castle in a matter in which nothing was involved?"

"Pardon me," returned Carrington, loftily. "There was something involved, something of which you reck little."

"And that was?"

"My honor and the honor of my wife. At that time I supposed the debt an honest one, the play fair. Think you I could allow that to stand against you while I had a penny?"

"It was not love then that made you interpose?"

"Love!" sneered Carrington. "How could I love a woman whose chief joy is to mock me, to humiliate me, to heap ridicule upon me, to disgrace me?"

"You have said enough, my lord."

"Madam, this passes beyond all bounds. The scene to-night was disgraceful. You insulted all my guests, you publicly branded me, you flaunted your person disgracefully in that abandoned hornpipe, which you danced with that Puritan bit of sanctimoniousness at the harpsichord—"

"I have said before," cried Ellen, "that you can stop right there. The English gentleman's code, I take it from my experience of it at home here, allows you to say anything you please to me or about me, but you will please leave my friends out of the discussion."

"There is one friend that I shall bring in the discussion."

"And who is that?"

"Strathgate."

"And what has he done?"

"What has he done? My God!"

gasped my lord, choking with rage.

"He has always treated me like a gentleman," returned Ellen, "but perhaps that's because he's not married to me."

"You insult my friends," cried Carrington, trying to give the conversation a different turn.

"I only follow your lead, my lord."

"Yes, I saw his consideration in carrying you up the terrace steps a few moments after you eavesdropped. What heard you in the arbor?"

"Not one word," answered Ellen.

"But I saw you in the moonlight, and that was enough, my lord. I swear to you that unless you promise me on your word that you will dismiss Lady Cecily to-morrow I shall never be wife to you again."

"I cannot be discourteous to my guests," returned Carrington with sudden dignity.

"And does courtesy to your guests involve taking them in your arms and kissing them? Have you tried it with Mrs. Monbrant, or with the duchess of Dulward? Now, she, indeed, would be a fit object for your kind attentions."

"There is one guest that I shall dismiss in the morning, ay, two," returned my lord, white with anger.

"And who are those, pray?"

"Strathgate and Seton."

"My friend and your friend. That's well thought on, and you will have me defenseless, then, at your mercy, compelled to look upon your love making with that abandoned woman. But I'll not stand it. I'll go back to America!"

"You would never dare."

"Would I not?" cried Ellen, manfully. "Watch me in the morning."

It was one by the great clock in the hall when she withdrew from her boudoir and entered her own bedroom. Opening a closet she drew therefrom underneath a pile of feminine apparel a certain sailor's dress which she had sometimes used in cruising and boating expeditions with her husband since her marriage, and which she had often used before in long cruises on her father's ships. There were stout, heavy buckskin shoes, soft, woolen stockings, trousers wide and flaring at the knee and belted at the waist, a soft shirt of blue, a rough pea-jacket. Slipping off her own clothes, she transformed herself with rapid fingers into a sailor lad. She undid her hair and tied it behind in a man's queue. From the same closet she took a slender sword and a pair of heavy pistols.

She went back softly into the boudoir and sat down at her desk. From a secret drawer she drew a purse filled with gold pieces, sovereigns of England. On the table lay a cheque book. Her balance at the bank she found was a trifle over £20,000, the amount she owed my lord.

Fortunately, there was another exit from her suite of apartments besides that which led through my lord's dressing room. She unlocked the door and stepped into the corridor.

Deborah was a light sleeper. She woke instantly, terrified beyond measure to see a tall, dark figure bending over her. She opened her mouth to scream, but Ellen had the quickness to clap her hand over the mouth and stifle the noise. Her familiar voice reassured Mistress Deborah. The girl sat up in bed and stared in amazement.

"What do you want?"

"I am leaving the castle," returned Ellen, "and you must come with me."

"Oh!" said Deborah. "And where are you going?"

"Back to America."

"But Sir Charles?"

"If Sir Charles cares anything for you," said Ellen authoritatively, "he will follow you to the end of the world."

"With whom do you go?"

"Lord Strathgate."

"Oh, Ellen!" exclaimed Deborah in horror-stricken accents.

"Peace, girl!" said Lady Ellen, "he acts, or he shall act, as my coachman alone, but I must have you with me. We can talk no longer. Dress yourself. Would that I had boy's clothes for you!"

"I should never wear them! never!"

"Well, dress yourself in the clothes in which you came from America, then. Do you know where they are?"

"I have them always at hand."

"And I will assist you," said Ellen. Fortune favored them. They stole down the stairs through the great hall and found the door unbarred, much to Ellen's satisfaction, for it indicated that Strathgate had been before them.

"Is that you, my lord?" she asked in a low voice.

"Yes," answered Strathgate. "Did you think I would fail you?"

And from the clock in the tower above them boomed out two strokes of the bell.

Where Politeness Doesn't Pay.

"French and German hats," said a hatter, "only last half as long as ours. It isn't the poor quality of the hats but the fine quality of the manners that causes this."

"Lifting the hat in salutation is the hardest work that falls on the headpiece, and the French and Germans lift it to men and women equally, thus giving it twice as much labor as we do. Naturally, then, it wears out twice as quickly. It goes in the brim in no time over the water."

Outside of His Practice.

"All that is the matter with you, sir," said the eminent physician, after a thorough examination, "is lack of nutrition. You don't eat enough."

"I eat all I can hold, doctor," said the attenuated caller.

"Then you need to have your capacity enlarged, and that's a case for a surgeon. Five dollars, please. Good morning."

CEREBRO-SPINAL MENINGITIS A FATAL DISEASE OF HORSES

Probable Causes of the Malady and Its Symptoms—By H. J. MILKS, D. V. M., Louisiana.

Cerebro-spinal meningitis in horses is also known as staggers, blind staggers, sleepy staggers, bottom sickness, etc., and scarcely any section of the country has escaped the ravages of the disease at some time or other.

Numerous theories have been advanced as to the cause of this disease. It has been attributed to grazing upon low, marshy places, hence the name bottom sickness. The cause also has been laid to moldy corn or fodder, poisonous plants, exposure to sun, impure water, etc. Mayo, reporting a very similar disease, concludes it to be due to a fungus, Aspergillus glaucus. The spores enter the circulation, find lodgment in the organs and set up inflammatory conditions. The cerebral symptoms were due to an abscess of the brain. He has also recovered the above fungus from the different organs.

Chester of the Delaware station has carried on a series of feeding experi-

In those cases that survived, the disease attacked slowly, the animal usually taking some nourishment and showed all the symptoms of a mild attack.

The mortality was 90 per cent. or more. Treatment availed little, unless started in the first few hours of the disease, and even then prognosis was unfavorable.

Although the exact cause of meningitis in horses and mules has never, as yet, been satisfactorily demonstrated, either in this country or abroad, it has been the opinion of Dr. W. H. Dalrymple of the Louisiana station, who has experienced several previous outbreaks in that state, during both the spring and summer months, that the cause was, in some way, associated with the condition of the feeding materials—either grass or cured products, such as corn, etc.—brought about by the attack of molds or fungi; and that when a complete ments with negative results. Some even point out the infectious nature of the disease.

In the mild cases we got dullness, stupor, weakness, hanging of the head, paresis or slight loss of control over one or more limbs, a slight rise in temperature, 102 to 103 degrees Fahrenheit, often difficulty in swallowing. The visible mucosae were congested and brownish yellow. In these mild cases the weakness never became so great that the animal could not stand and usually it was able to take some nourishment and water.

The more severe cases were manifested by the same general symptoms, often, however, the respirations were much increased and labored. In the severe cases the animals usually refused food, but often showed a desire for water, although unable to drink. The digestive tract was almost completely paralyzed. Purgatives seemed to do little good, no matter what the dose. The hypodermic use of eserine or arecoline did not produce purgation, but did exhibit other physiological phenomena.

The disease generally runs a rapidly fatal course, lasting from a few hours to four or five days—usually not more than three or four days. The time given by some authorities, eight to twelve days, is entirely too long, except in cases that survive.

change to food that was absolutely sound was made, the disease was either checked, or disappeared entirely.

This, also, would seem to have been the experience of other investigators. Consequently, until the exact nature of the agent producing meningitis, as well as a possible remedy, has been discovered, we would urgently recommend to stock owners, that, as soon as they observe the first symptoms of so-called "staggers," they at once make a change from feeding materials that are at all suspicious, to those that are perfectly sound. Or, as a matter of prevention at all times, that they do not supply to their animals, or permit them to consume, food of any kind that is not absolutely sound and free from molds or fungi.

Feed Light.—Very little should be fed to brood sows, as it makes them too fat. They should be given plenty of thin slop in which there is always valuable nutriment.

Cause of Sickness.—Much sickness among hogs is due to uncertain quarters, wet pens and exposure.

Provide Clean Water.—Keep plenty of clean water within reach of your hogs at all times.

RAISED FROM SICK BED.

After All Hope Had Vanished.

Mrs. J. H. Bennett, 59 Fountain St., Gardner, Me., says: "My back used to trouble me so severely that at last I had to give up. I took to my bed and stayed there four months, suffering intense pain, dizziness, headache and inflammation of the bladder. Though without hope, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and in three months was completely cured. The trouble has never returned."

SKIN TROUBLES CURED.

First Had Itching Rash—Threatened Later With Blood-Poison in Leg—Relied on Cuticura Remedies.

"About twelve or fifteen years ago I had a breaking-out, and it itched, and stung so badly that I could not have any peace because of it. Three doctors did not help me. Then I used some Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent and began to get better right away. They cured me and I have not been bothered with the itching since, to amount to anything. About two years ago I had a grippe and pneumonia, which left me with a pain in my side. Treatment ran it into my leg, which then swelled and began to break out. The doctor was afraid it would turn to blood-poison. I used his medicine but it did no good, then I used the Cuticura Remedies three times and cured the breaking-out on my leg. J. F. Hennen, Milan, Mo., May 13, 1907."

Arrange for Pure Milk.

Chicago has a medical cow. She was bought by a woman health department inspector. Dr. Caroline Hedger, to produce pure milk for desperately sick babies in a crowded tenement district, and, according to reports, this latest Chicago experiment in municipal ownership has been a great success. "I purchased the cow for the department," said Dr. Hedger. "I told Commissioner Evans I needed a cow to save the lives of the sick babies out my way, and he told me to buy one; so I did. Some friends of mine are taking care of her, milking her and taking the milk direct to the sick infants. It doesn't go through a dozen hands before it reaches the babies. We get enough milk to supply the babies of 14 families."

Immunity.

Satan had just ordered more coal thrown on the fire.
"By Tumnous!" he cursed, "but that last arrival is a tough proposition. The more I try to roast him the more he smiles."

He called the chief stoker.
"Well, what luck?" asked Satan.
The stoker shook his head.
"He's still smiling," he answered.
"Where's he from?" cried old Nick, out of patience.

NO GUSHER

But Tells Facts About Postum.

"We have used Postum for the past eight years," writes a Wis. lady, "and drink it three times a day. We never tire of it."

"For several years I could scarcely eat anything on account of dyspepsia, bloating after meals, palpitation, sick headache—in fact was in such misery and distress I tried living on hot water and toast for nearly a year."

"I had quit coffee, the cause of my trouble, and was using hot water, but this was not nourishing."

"Hearing of Postum I began drinking it, and my ailments disappeared, and now I can eat anything I want without trouble."

"My parents and husband had about the same experience. Mother would often suffer after eating, while yet drinking coffee. My husband was a great coffee drinker and suffered from indigestion and headache."

"After he stopped coffee and began Postum both ailments left him. He will not drink anything else now and we have it three times a day. I could write more but am no gusher—only state plain facts."

STOPPED SHORT OF TELEPATHY.

Dog's Action Simply Seemed to Show That He Could Reason.

A New York dog fancier, who has a particularly vivid imagination when it comes to spinning yarns touching on the subject of dogology, tells this one:

"I don't know whether there is such a thing as telepathy between dog and man, but I'm inclined to believe there is. Let me give you an instance. Recently I had a dog that used to bring matches to me whenever he saw me take a cigar in my own house. I would just hold the cigar up where he could see it, and he would march into the dining-room, pick up the matchbox that stood on a small table, and bring it to me, though I hadn't said a word to him. One day it happened that I had a matchbox, but no cigar. I showed the matchbox to the dog, and he went straight into my bedroom and got a cigar from a box I kept among a half dozen others under the bed, and brought it to me without so much as making it damp. Folks said at the time that it showed that the dog could reason. It showed a good deal more, for it showed that he could understand what I wanted, though I never said a word to him.

"Still, I don't pretend that there was really any telepathy about the matter. If that dog had been a mile away when I wanted a cigar, and had instantly gone to a tobaccoist's and stolen a cigar and brought it to me, I should have had to admit that telepathy was the only explanation of the affair."

VARIETIES OF COLLEGE GOWNS.

Distinctions in Styles That Mark the Grade of the Wearer.

It has been said that few people, including many university men themselves, have any definite idea of the meaning of the gowns worn by collegiate students.

In America, university gowns exhibit much variety, there being a great difference in the various institutions; but all over the country—in fact, all over the English-speaking world—certain distinctions hold.

The ordinary bachelor's gown, the first the student owns, is of undyed black, with pointed sleeves, and is ordinarily made of serge or other simple black fabric. The master's gown is like the student's, inasmuch as it is plain black; but the sleeves are cut differently, being long pendants shaped not unlike fish tails, and hanging from the elbows nearly to the bottom of the gown. The master's gown may be made of silk, as may also the bachelor's gown if it is worn by a man of long academic standing who has happened to receive no higher degree; but the ordinary university man has no desire to clad himself in silk.

Most doctors' gowns, especially in England and Scotland, have hoods that give them certain distinctions, and differentiate, by differences of color, the doctorates.—Harper's Weekly.

Monkey Sent to Boys' Home.

"Jersey Justice" has long been famed for its speed, but if the state produces many more freak cases like one that cropped out last week its courts are likely to become known for something besides celerity. A live monkey is a regularly committed inmate of the State Home for Boys at Jamesburg. Not long ago the monkey's owner, an Italian, was sent to the state prison from South River. What to do with "da monk" was a question for the law officers until one of them hit upon the happy idea of committing him to the state home. The papers were made out by a sheriff, and the monkey was accepted and received for in due form by the superintendent of the home. Pedro lives for two weeks at a time with each of the groups of "families" of boys in the institution.

Cloudy Mirror.

A mirror may have become cloudy from either of two reasons—the surface may have become covered with fine scratches, or else too strong a light falling on it may have damaged the silvering. In the former case the scratches may be almost completely removed by rubbing the part affected with a piece of soft leather moistened with water and dipped in jeweler's rouge. If you have much to do it will save time to set up a buff wheel made of wood and grind out the scratches with fine pumice stone and water, and then polish with a felt buff and rouge with water.

Removing Paint from Wood.

The easiest way to remove paint from wood is to burn it with a lamp specially constructed for the purpose; this softens the paint to such a degree that it is then easily scraped off with a painter's flat-ended knife. If such a lamp cannot be had, the paint may be removed by applying strong soda lye, and after leaving it for some time scraping it off as before. If the wood is to be repainted, it is necessary to go over it first with vinegar or weak acid to "kill" or neutralize the soda which would prevent the paint from adhering.

Chicago Women to Wear Sandals.

Nearly 1,000 Chicago women will wear sandals this summer, local shoe dealers predict. One firm already has laid in a stock of several hundred in adult sizes, as well as sizes for children. The women of Chicago don't need the support of a physical culture club to give them courage to go sandalizing.

WHEN HE CHANGED HIS MIND.

Announcement About New Cook Seemed to Make a Difference.

Two prosperous business men met on a Broadway local, says the New York Times.

"Howdy do, old man, haven't seen you in an age. How's Mrs. Dayton?"

"Fine and dandy, Brown; and how are you and the madam?"

"Mrs. Brown and your humble servant are both well, but by Jove, our health would improve if we saw the Joseph P. Daytons ringing our door bell."

"Yes, yes, I admit we've been remiss. Mrs. D. and I both speak of you so often and reproach ourselves for our neglect. It's been fully a year since we dined with you."

"You're shy a few months, but we'll let that pass. Suppose you come over to dinner one night next week."

"Really, I can't just say. I think I heard Mrs. Dayton say something about next week being all taken up, and—"

"Well, old man, here is my station; better come; we've got a new cook; she's a dandy. Good night."

"Why, yes, Brown, we'll make the date over the 'phone," shouted Dayton, after the hurrying figure.

FOR THE USERS OF TOBACCO.

Assertion That Plant Was Certainly Placed Here for Good Purpose.

It is passing strange that, with all the experience at command, the physiologists are never in agreement as to the effects of the smoking habit. Even where lay opinion has been fairly well established by the apparently well digested views of the scientists with respect to certain phases of the whole problem, they are wholly liable to up-setting by the latest opinion. For example, two considerations have long been thought to be determined—that moderate indulgence in tobacco need not be denied, and that the lad not out of his teens would better abjure tobacco altogether. It may be asserted that man is not a smoker by nature; and certain effects of tobacco seem to indicate, without especial argument, that the longer the acquirement of the habit is postponed the better for the human system. At the same time the remote antiquity of the tobacco plant suggests that it is one of nature's unassisted growths; and, if it were not designed for man to enjoy in security, neither is it at all clear that it is to be classed with nature's productions.—Providence Journal.

A Noiseless Room.

For many physical researches a perfectly noiseless room is a desideratum. If such could be devised it would open up new possibilities of research. At the University of Utrecht the problem has been apparently successfully solved by the room designed by Zwaardemaker. The walls and ceiling of the room are 11 inches thick, and are formed of six separate layers. The first consists of a feltlike material of horsehair, known as trichopile, this is followed by a layer of porous stone isolated from the floor by sheet lead. An air space of about an inch is followed by wood, and then a course of ground cork and sand. The final layer is of specially prepared ground cork, known as korkstein.

Woman Operates Alaska Copper Mine.

On the west coast of Prince of Wales Island, Alaska, little traveled and off the beaten paths of sea commerce, is a copper mine which for several years has been operated under the management of a woman. It has been a successful venture, made so from careful management, and the owner, Tola Wyman, is perhaps the only woman in Alaska who is shipping ore out of that territory. For two years she has been sending her product to the Tacoma smelter.

Mrs. Wyman is of middle age, with ruddy cheeks and with health enough for half a dozen city women. She keeps as much track of the copper market and the copper situation as any other miner.

The Magic of Odd Numbers.

"Even in the matter of weighing groceries there seems a magic in odd numbers," said a housekeeper. "Most of the packages of salt, sugar, coffee and other commodities that grocers keep on hand to facilitate trade contain an odd number of pounds. If you are in a hurry and ask for a made-up package of almost any kind of groceries tradesmen can accommodate you with a one-pound, three-pound or a five-pound package; but the chances are that if you want two pounds or four pounds of anything it will have to be weighed to order."

How About Uncle?

"Well, George, you've been fishing with your uncle, have you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Your uncle told us he caught a dozen big fellows. Can't you tell us how many you caught?"

"No response from George."

"But you haven't lost your tongue, have you? How many did you catch?"

"I haven't lost my tongue, sir, but papa's still in just over there and he always punishes me for lying."

J. McCAN DAVIS,
REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR CLERK OF SUPREME COURT.

J. McCan Davis, the Republican nominee for Clerk of the supreme court, is one of the best known newspaper men in Illinois. He was born in Fulton county November 19, 1866. He began his newspaper work in Canton, Ill., as local editor of the Canton Republican, afterwards becoming its editor. While in this position he was official reporter for the circuit court. During the campaign of 1888 he was managing editor of the Council Bluffs, (Ia.) Daily Herald. In November, 1888, he moved to Springfield where he has since resided. He was first employed on the Illinois State Journal. Subsequently he turned his attention to representing metropolitan papers in the state capital. He has represented the Globe Democrat for seven years. March 20, 1897, he became manager of the legislative bureau of the Associated Press. Gov. Yates appointed him secretary of the state board of pardons, which position he resigned in 1904 to become managing editor of the Springfield News. Mr. Davis was admitted to the bar by the supreme court in 1895. He is an authority on the early life of Abraham Lincoln and contributed extensively to the "Life of Lincoln," which appeared in McClure's Magazine in 1895 and 1896.

POSTMEN'S WALKING FEATS.

One in English Service Holds Record with 440,000 Miles in 58 Years.

There must be few, even among "men of letters" who, like Joseph Hunt, a Lincolnshire, England, postman, can claim to have tramped a distance of, roughly, 240,000 miles, not much less than the equivalent of ten journeys around the earth.

Not long ago George Thompson, retired from service as postman in the Langrick district of Yorkshire, after covering on foot 125,000 miles in 26 years of letter carrying, a service 14 years shorter than that of his Lincolnshire rival.

In 34 years Orme M. Brown walked 11,000 miles as postman between Cupar and Kilmarnock and Logie—a distance, as was stated in the appropriate presentation to him of an easy chair, nearly equal to half that which separates the moon from the earth.

John Simmonds of Henley-on-Thames retired with a record of 181,000 miles of fair "heel and toe," the result of 40 years' tramping; while most amazing of all, Thomas Phipps, a postman in the Chipping Norton district, was credited with an aggregate journey of 440,000 miles between the years 1840 and 1898.

Character Molds the Face.

It is not in words explicable with what divine lines and lights the exercise of godliness and charity will mold and gild the hardest and coldest countenance, neither to what darkness their departure will consign the loveliest. For there is not any virtue the exercise of which, even momentarily, will not impress a new fairness upon the features; neither on them only, but on the whole body the moral and intellectual faculties have operation, for all the movements and gestures, however slight, are different in their modes according to the mind that governs them—and on the gentleness and decision of right feeling follows grace of actions, and, through continuance of this, grace of form.—John Ruskin.

New Railway to Alps' Peak.

An electric railway is being built on the Zugspitze, the highest peak in the Alps, on Bavarian territory. Its height is about 10,000 feet. The railway will run to the summit, while a hotel will be built at the 7,000-foot level.

AND THEN HE WASN'T PLEASED.

Wife's Economy That Drew No Praise from Husband.

There was a pensive look in Mrs. Compton's charming eyes, but she smiled across the table at her husband when he asked her if she felt too tired to go with him to a concert. "I suppose you have been busy packing all day," he said, thoughtfully.

"Oh, yes, I've been busy," she said, with a little sigh, "but I feel satisfied, for everything is packed now, except the last things, that can't go in the trunks till to-morrow, and besides that I have done something I'm sure will please you, Henry. It will show you that I'm really learning to be thrifty and economical like you."

"I should like to hear what you've done," said Mr. Compton, with a serious air as his wife's.

"I knew that the battery in my little electric lantern would not begin to last till our vacation was over," said Mrs. Compton, "and yet it didn't really need to be recharged yet. So rather than have that spark wasted, I went into the library at dusk, with all the curtains drawn and the shades down, and just sat there in the dark—or it would have been dark except for the lantern, I mean—and pressed one finger after another on the lantern button, changing fingers as they got numb, till at last the spark gave out. So now I can have it recharged to-morrow with a clear conscience."—Youth's Companion.

Recording Millionths of a Second.

According to one of the government scientists, in experimenting with high-power explosives used in guns a chronoscope has been employed which registered the velocity of the projectile at 16 successive points before it left the bore. It was possible with this apparatus to register time to the millionth of a second.

In former experiments, where the velocity did not exceed 1,500 or 1,600 feet a second, the projectile recorded its time by knocking down a series of steel triggers projecting into the bore. But with velocities of 2,500 feet and more to the second, the trigger, instead of dropping, frequently plowed a groove in the projectile, and another device was necessary.

The Retort Courteous.

Roger Minot Sherman, while arguing a celebrated case, said that his opponent could no more prove his point than he could cut a hair lengthwise. While he was still talking the opponent, who happened to have a very sharp knife, pulled a hair from his beard and split it. As he held it up the court began to laugh, and Mr. Sherman quickly called out: "I said a hair, sir, not a bristle."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Hearst says he has invested a great deal of capital in this campaign. Still we should say he is getting his money's worth.

It is to be hoped that in the three cornered scrimmage between Messrs. Roosevelt, Bryan and Hearst, Mr. Taft may not share the fate of the "innocent bystander."

"A champion shotputter will stomp the country for Bryan," says an item in a New York paper. Mr. Bryan, it is hardly necessary to say, will do the hammer throwing himself.

There are said to be 90,000 women in New York who are over seventy years of age. This of course does not take into account the New York chorus girls who are on the road.

"Taft an early riser in South Dakota," says a newspaper headline. This is no news to Mr. Bryan, who has been unable to catch up with the Republican candidate even by sitting up all night.

The cartoonist who invented the pictorial character, Mr. E. Z. Mark, died the other day in Philadelphia. Mr. Bryan, the original political E. Z. Mark, is still with us, and seems to be as incapable of learning anything by experience as his double of the comic supplement.

Much is said about the disappearance of the cheap breakfast table though we could never see why the breakfast table was uniquely expensive as compared with the dinner or supper table but there is a peculiarity of the American table of the well to do, (and by the way there is no other kind in America) in that butter appears there three times a day. It is a fact well known that American butter of the choicest brand is sold in Europe at from five to ten cents a pound less than it can be bought for in the country of its origin. The reason is that there it competes with the butter of Denmark, Holland, England, Switzerland, France and the Islands of Alderney and Jersey. The butter of the United States is protected in the markets of a nation of 85,000,000 of inhabitants where the tariff has routed competition. This winter butter will reach fifty cents a pound. There is a butter trust octopus which limits the home supply, demands whatever price it chooses and sends its surplus to Europe for any price it will bring in a country of more abundant plenty than any other cheap food is a thing of the past. Everything in the dining room is highly taxed except coffee, tea and pepper. These are the only articles by the way upon which the Briton pays taxes. His butter, meat, bread, linen, table, chairs, fruits and vegetables are free and he gets them at a lower price than they can be bought elsewhere in the world. One of these days the political issue will be cheap food and it will sweep the country like an epidemic. Cold storage sheep and beef from Argentine and frozen rabbits from Australia will be brought in free with butter from Denmark and Ireland to reduce the outrageous prices that the trusts have imposed on the very means of life.

Had a Close Call.

Mrs. Ada L. Croom, the widely known proprietor of the Croom Hotel, Vaughn, Miss., says: "For several months I suffered with a severe cough, and consumption seemed to have its grip on me, when a friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery. I began taking it, and three bottles affected a complete cure." The fame of this life saving cough and cold remedy and lung and throat healer is world wide. Sold at J. H. Swan's drug store. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

In Chicago, of Course.

A mother hid her $1,500 worth of jewels in her little daughter's slipper, forgot all about it and the next day threw the slipper into the garbage can. Of course, it happened in Chicago, says the New York Herald. Where else would a child's slipper hold all those gems?

David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., a veteran of the civil war, who lost a foot at Gettysburg, says: "The good Electric Bitters have done is worth more than five hundred dollars to me. I now take them as a tonic and they keep me strong and well. 50c at J. H. Swan's drug store.

Psychological Mystery.

New London has a haunted house in which dried beans fly about recklessly. That's the ghost of a small boy easy enough. But the ghost of a bean-shooter presents greater psychological difficulties.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold—only you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupifying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says: "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Hereafter for this very reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's label—and none in the medicine else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup is used nearly everywhere, because it not only heals irritation of the throat and stops the cough, but it drives the cold out of the system through its laxative principle by assuring a free and gentle action of the bowels, and that is the only way to cure a cold. You can't cure it as long as you are constipated. Insist upon Kennedys, Laxative Cough Syrup. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Guessed His Idea.

The young man had gone to the helress' father—always a ticklish job—but he took his courage with an iron grip.

"Sir," he blurted out, "I want to ask you for your daughter's hand."

The old man, not in the least disconcerted, said:

"Which hand? The one she signs checks with, I suppose."

Stomach troubles would more quickly disappear if the idea of treating the cause, rather than the effect, would come into practice. A tiny, inside, hidden nerve, says Dr. Shoop, governs and gives strength to the stomach. A branch also goes to the Heart, and one to the Kidneys. When these "inside nerves" fail, then the organs must falter. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is directed specifically to these failing nerves. Within 48 hours after starting the Restorative treatment patients say they realize a gain. Sold by J. H. Swan.

BULGARIANS CAST OFF THE YOKE OF TURKEY

Independence Proclaimed with Ferdinand as Their Czar--Austria Annexes Bosnia and Herzegovina --Two Events May Provoke Sultan to War.

London.—In the ancient capital of Tirnovo the independence of Bulgaria was proclaimed Monday, with the czar of the Bulgarians as a ruler. Czar of the Bulgarians is recognized to mean more than czar of Bulgaria, because it is a distinct intimation that he regards his country as having sovereignty over all the people of that blood in the east.

Within a day or two Austria-Hungary, which has been working with Prince Ferdinand in this preconcerted plan, will proclaim the new status of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The question, which has been stirring the whole of Europe more deeply than any similar question in the memory of the present generation is, does it mean war? From all the capitals come reports indicating that it means, first of all, another European congress of the signers of the treaty of Berlin to consider the situation and probably to revise the treaty.

Turkey May Avoid War. Turkey, caught in a moment of weakness, is the victim of this situation, and while some internal animosities have been stirred up, probably no power is willing to make war. Reports from the emancipated Turkish press to London indicate that the "Young Turks" will swallow this bitter pill as best they can, and, if they do, naturally the Bulgarians, while willing and eager for war, will have no cause on which to base the beginning of hostilities.

From the British standpoint the whole affair has been a surprise, and more than a surprise, because for the first time in years the British government felt itself with apparently a perfect understanding with France and Russia and complete friendship with Italy, to be in a position where it dominated European politics, reserving out of this consideration the almost open enmity between itself and Germany.

Great Britain's Warning. Probably never in the history of Europe have politics taken such amazingly kaleidoscopic revolutions as during the past week. An entangling situation will come when the signatories of the Berlin treaty meet to consider what action shall be taken regarding the violations of the treaty. Great Britain Monday night served notice that it does not recognize the right of any of the parties to this treaty to violate its provisions, without consulting the others, but English diplomats know that the conference will resolve itself into a scramble among the powers to get what is termed in European politics "compensating advantages," which Austria, backed by Germany, has already obtained.

The official statement issued by the British foreign office says: "His majesty's government cannot admit the right of any power to alter an international treaty without the consent of the other parties to it, and it therefore refuses to sanction any infraction of the Berlin treaty and declines to recognize what has been done until the views of the other powers are known, especially those of Turkey, which is more directly concerned than anyone else."

France Also for Peace. The chances of war between Bulgaria and Turkey are being minimized by Great Britain and France, who are working together and who have advised Turkey against it. Turkey apparently is disposed to follow this advice, and it is believed that if hasty action on the part of Turkey can be prevented, Bulgaria will have difficulty in finding an excuse to begin war.

The action of Prince Ferdinand in proclaiming the independence of Bulgaria is condemned alike by the governments and press of Europe, but in some quarters this is considered a matter of minor importance, so long as it does not eventuate in war, as compared with the threatened annexation of the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina by Austria-Hungary. Reports from Belgrade indicate that Serbia has been aroused to the danger point, bands of Servians marching the streets of Belgrade and shouting for war with Austria.

Turkey Refuses to Yield. Constantinople.—The council of ministers met early Monday evening and were still sitting at midnight, preparing a protest which will be submitted to Bulgaria and the powers against the violation of the treaty of Berlin. Prince Ferdinand has telegraphed to the Turkish government that he was compelled to respect the voice of the nation, and hoped that the friendly relations between the two countries would continue. Turkey's reply, which is being prepared, refuses to recognize Bulgaria's independence.

A committee of the "Young Turks" party also is holding a session at which the situation is being reviewed. Servians Are Enraged.

Belgrade, Serbia.—The news of Austria-Hungary's action with regard to the annexation of the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina has aroused Serbia to the danger point. The streets are thronged with a wild mob, many of the rioters discharging their revolvers and demanding war with Austria rather than annexation.

Mediation by France. Paris.—France has essayed the role of mediator with the object of preventing war between Turkey and Bulgaria, and as a result of Foreign Minister Pichon's series of conferences Monday with the representatives of the powers, including M. Iswolsky, the Russian foreign minister; Naoum Pasha, the Turkish ambassador to France; the Austro-Hungarian, the British, the American and the Italian ambassadors, and of active exchanges which have been going on between the various cabinets. It was announced that France, Great Britain, Russia and possibly Italy were prepared to act in unison to preserve peace and to call a conference of the signatories of the Berlin treaty to deal diplomatically with the situation that has arisen between Turkey and Bulgaria and to harmonize conflicting interests so that fresh complications may be avoided.

Already certain tentative propositions as a basis for such conference have been forwarded to Constantinople and if the Porte's assent can be secured it is regarded as certain that peace will be maintained. The nature of these propositions has not been disclosed, but it is understood that they involve the recognition of Bulgaria's independence as a "fait accompli."

Bulgarians Want War. The danger of war is believed to be in precipitate action at Constantinople. Forced by the "Young Turks" party, which may fear a blow at its prestige if it acquiesces in the loss of Bulgaria, and by the military party, which wants to restore the old order of things, it is feared that Turkey, although ill-prepared both from a financial and military standpoint, may proclaim war. Should this be the case, the efforts of the powers will then be directed to limiting the war to Bulgaria and Turkey.

According to information received here Bulgaria would welcome war, as the Bulgarians are convinced that their army could march straight to Constantinople before the Turkish forces could be mobilized.

The view is now held here that there has been a double move on the part of Bulgaria and Austria-Hungary, these two countries acting together, and that Germany and Italy were advised of it in advance. Russia also received an intimation of the plan, but M. Iswolsky asserts that he was not let fully into the secret and in some respects was misled.

Troops Moving to Frontier. The Temps Monday published a dispatch from Vienna saying that the Bulgarian army is marching toward the frontier and that the Turks also are moving forward to the encounter. Austria-Hungary is mobilizing two army corps.

Bulgaria Declares Independence. Sofia, Bulgaria.—Bulgaria, a tributary principality under the suzerainty of the sultan of Turkey, Monday proclaimed her independence of Turkey.

This action was taken at Tirnovo by Prince Ferdinand, who was elected prince of Bulgaria in 1887. The Bulgarian cabinet was present with the prince, having met Sunday at the frontier and journeyed with him to Tirnovo.

The proclamation was made at the cathedral of Tirnovo at 11 o'clock Monday. It was a dramatic scene, accompanied by much enthusiasm. A manifesto of independence addressed to the nation was subsequently issued by the prince.

Tirnovo is the ancient capital of the kingdom of Bulgaria, and it was there in the olden days that the kings of Bulgaria were crowned.

Wright in Passenger Trips. Le Mans, France.—Wilbur Wright, the American aeroplaneist, made two flights with passengers Monday. One was with M. Bollee, who weighs about 216 pounds, and the other with M. Peller, vice-president of the Aero club of the Sarthe.

Charged with Slaying Kin. Chattanooga, Tenn.—As a result of evidence taken before the coroner's jury Monday, J. C. Stanfield is in jail charged with having murdered his father-in-law, H. C. Risley.

HURRICANE HITS MANILA

BAY IS SWEEPED FOR HOURS BY TREMENDOUS STORM.

Battleships Uninjured by the Fierce Gale and Heavy Sea—Damage Done Ashore.

Manila.—The Atlantic battleship fleet has safely outridden a hurricane which swept Manila bay for 12 hours and did much damage ashore.

Typhoon signals were displayed early Sunday morning, but the storm broke over the bay suddenly and unexpectedly at noon. It was impossible to hoist the cutters and launches belonging to the fleet because of the danger of smashing them against the steel sides of the battleships, and the little craft were sent scurrying inside the breakwater into the Pasig river, where they remained all night.

The storm quickly increased in intensity and the torrential rains shut in the ships.

At eight o'clock Sunday night the storm had reached its height and it then gradually tapered down until at midnight it was comparatively calm, although heavy seas swung across the harbor.

During the storm all the battleships had steam up ready for any emergency. Rear Admiral Sperry finally ordered the flagship Connecticut and the Kansas, Minnesota, Vermont, Virginia and Ohio under way. They were close to Cavite, where they anchored.

At times the wind blew at the rate of 100 miles an hour. All communication with shore was cut off. It was impossible during the height of the storm to see the warships through the haze of rain and spray.

Manila.—Lieut. Frank Taylor Evans of the battleship Louisiana and Lieut. Charles Burt of the battleship Georgia, will be tried before a special court-martial board which will assemble on the battleship Wisconsin Monday.

The charges against Lieut. Evans are for being absent from his station while acting as chief of the deck, using profane and disrespectful language to a superior officer and intoxication. The charges against Lieut. Burt are for "conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman."

Lieut. Evans denies the charge of intoxication and says that he will offer the testimony of a number of witnesses to prove that he has been sober and quite fit for duty.

Carload of Abandoned Children. St. Paul, Minn.—A carload of 60 bright-looking boys and girls from New York reached St. Paul Wednesday. The unusual consignment was made up of children who had been deserted by their parents and had been sheltered in the foundling hospital of the metropolis. They are being taken to the Dakotas, where homes have been found for them among the farmers. On their arrival here about 35 of the children were transferred to a Soo line coach to be taken to points along that road in North Dakota.

Mormons for "Dry" Legislation. Salt Lake City.—Having heard their president expound the revelation of the words of wisdom which prohibits the use of all intoxicants by the faithful, 15,000 members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints Sunday proclaimed their faith in the practical application of the ecclesiastical law by voting unanimously approval of a resolution pledging the entire membership of the church to support prohibition legislation. The occasion was the opening of the seventy-ninth semi-annual conference.

Col. Marcy Burned to Death. Minot, N. D.—Col. J. C. Marcy, aged 77 years, once one of the most prominent attorneys in the northwest, was burned to death at his home in this city early Sunday. The fire was caused by the upsetting of a lamp, which set fire to the bed clothing.

Winnipeg Cathedral Dedicated. Winnipeg, Man.—The new St. Boniface cathedral, erected at a cost of $600,000, was dedicated Sunday afternoon in the presence of a great array of prelates and clergy.

TWO LARGE HOTELS BURNED.

Fire Sweeps Summer Resort Near Boston.

Boston.—Two of the largest hotels, Cresthall and the Ocean View, which swept Manila bay for 12 hours and did much damage ashore, were destroyed by fire here early Saturday with a loss estimated at more than $150,000. Mrs. A. C. Dumont of Cincinnati, who was a guest at Cresthall, was reported by the police as missing, and men waited for the ruins to cool so that they could be searched. There were nearly 100 guests in the two hotels and many had narrow escapes. Few persons were able to save any of their property, as the hotel buildings were practically burned to the ground.

Cresthall was owned by Fred Hall and the Ocean View by Mrs. L. B. O'Brien. Fifty guests at Cresthall and 39 at the Ocean View were aroused, and all but one are known to have made their escape before the fire reached them. Some from the Ocean View were able to save part of their effects.

The fire started at midnight in the kitchen of Cresthall. A strong northeast wind swept the flames directly down the beach and only the timely arrival of aid from Boston, Chelsea and Revere, it is believed, saved a large part of the valuable ocean front from destruction.

OPPOSE DR. KOCH'S THEORY.

Experts Dislike His Human-Bovine Ideas.

Washington.—Pronounced opposition to the theory advanced by Dr. Robert Koch, the eminent German scientist, who minimizes the danger of human infection from bovine tuberculosis, and who declares that the tubercle bacilli of bovine tuberculosis are different from those of human tuberculosis, developed itself at Friday's session of the International Congress on Tuberculosis. The controversy occurred in the section on "The Prevalence and Economics on Tuberculosis of Animals," and the German scientist's theories were combated by some of the most prominent veterinary physicians in the United States. Leaders in the opposition to the Koch theory were Dr. Otto G. Noack of Reading, Pa.; Dr. Arthur Hughes of Cornell university; C. J. Marshall of Philadelphia; H. Reno Reynolds of the University of Minnesota, and Veranus A. Moore of Ithaca, N. Y.

Big Strike Has Collapsed.

Winnipeg, Man.—Indications are that the Canadian Pacific railroad mechanics' strike has collapsed. Bell Hardy, who has been conducting the strike from Montreal, arrived in this city Tuesday to confer with Vice-President Whyte, and it is possible arrange for the men to be taken back. It is understood that a message was received from the International Labor Federation at Washington advising the men to approach the company immediately with a view to going back.

Pittsburg Has $500,000 Fire.

Pittsburg.—An explosion of gas at the plant of the Pittsburg Plate Glass Company's works, No. 2, at Tarentum, a suburb, early Sunday resulted in a loss by fire of $500,000 and threw 800 men out of employment. W. A. Long, a watchman, was knocked down by the explosion, bruised and internally injured. Half of the plant is in ruins and the flames were only checked by a large steel building recently erected by the company.

Big Blaze at Winthrop Beach.

Boston.—A brisk fire broke out in the summer colony at Winthrop Beach at 11:30 o'clock Friday night. Crest Hall, a summer hotel accommodating 75 guests, and the Ocean house were soon in flames, and a large number of cottages near by were threatened.

Illinois Banker Is Indicted.

Peoria, Ill.—James W. Quillan, owner of a private bank at Ipava, Ill., was indicted Friday on ten counts for receiving deposits after he knew the bank was insolvent.

MORE GOULD CASE BRIBERY

HOTEL EMPLOYEE TOLD PRIEST OF BEING OFFERED $2,000.

Wife Submits Affidavit Defending Herself Against Charge of Drunkenness Made by Husband.

New York.—That $2,000 had been offered an employee of the Hotel St. Regis to give false testimony against Mrs. Howard Gould was the substance of an affidavit, purporting to have been made by Rev. Father Joseph G. Murray, which was presented to Justice Giegerich in the supreme court Friday.

The case came up before the justice on a motion to strike out certain allegations in Mrs. Gould's complaint in her suit for a separation from her husband, as scandalous and irrelevant. Mrs. Gould's counsel opposed the motion and presented several affidavits in which it was charged that certain witnesses had been hired to testify in favor of Mr. Gould. The affidavit of Father Murray was one of the papers presented. It declares that Michael H. Doody had told the priest that while he was employed at the Hotel St. Regis where Mrs. Gould lived, a detective went to him with the proposition that he "give a proper report of Mrs. Gould's comings and goings at the hotel, the amount of wine she drank and the names of her visitors, notably those of them that were men."

Another affidavit, made by Maurice Molloy, alleges that Molloy was under contract, while custodian of Castle Gould at Port Washington, to treat Mrs. Gould in a contemptuous fashion. The lawyer for Mrs. Gould recited how it was alleged that Molloy had gone into the house, sat on divans and puffed cigarette smoke in Mrs. Gould's face when she ordered him out of the house.

An affidavit submitted by Mrs. Gould in reply to allegations of her husband that she is addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors, says:

"When living in the country and spending most of my time in the open air, I have drunk a cocktail on sitting down to luncheon, and generally a glass of white wine with luncheon. At dinner, whenever I felt like it, I drank a cocktail and a glass of champagne. We were always accustomed to have wine served at these meals, but that was the extent of my drinking."

FUTILE ATTEMPT TO ROB BANK.

Yeggmen Use Dynamite in Cogswell, N. D., and Then Flee.

Cogswell, N. D.—Citizens, aroused at 1:15 a. m. Wednesday by three distinct explosions, poured out from their homes to find that yeggmen had blown off the front door of the safe in the Sargent County State bank, but had fled before they secured any loot. The robbers stole a handcar at Nicholson on the Soo road and came here upon it. They transferred the car to the Milwaukee line and used it to make their escape. They abandoned the car near Newark, S. D., and attempted to conceal it in a cornfield. The authorities have sent to Bismarck for hounds to track the fugitives and posers are out after them.

While driving down a hill near Yriesland the steering gear broke and the automobile turned bottom side up in a ditch. The other members of the party, Mrs. Brink, Mr. and Mrs. Bush and Mrs. Tenbroeck, all of Grand Rapids, escaped with slight injuries.

Can't Take Liquor from Depot.

Lawton, Okla.—It is a violation of the prohibition law for a transfer man or any other person to convey liquor from the railroad depot. Liquor shipped from without the state ceases to be interstate commerce after it leaves the carrier's hands. This is the opinion of Judge J. H. Wolverton of the county court, announced in a liquor case here Wednesday.

Minnesota Town Burned.

St. Cloud, Minn.—Foley, the county seat of Benson county, Minn., a village of 1,000 people, was practically destroyed by fire. The place has little fire protection, only a gasoline engine. Owing to strong winds, the fire spread rapidly. St. Cloud was appealed to for aid, but could do nothing. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

BIG MILITARY PARADE

FIRST PAGEANT OF FOUNDERS' WEEK IN PHILADELPHIA.

GEN. GRANT THE MARSHAL

Tablet Marking Site of Gen. Rochambeau's Camp Is Unveiled—Address by Vicomte de Chambrun.

Philadelphia.—Business in Philadelphia was practically at a standstill Monday while the citizens gave themselves over to the celebration of the two hundred and twenty-fifth birthday anniversary of the city. Probably the greatest throng that ever gathered along Broad street witnessed the military parade, which called out 20,000 soldiers and sailors of the United States and of the National Guard of Pennsylvania.

Maj. Gen. Frederick D. Grant, commanding the department of the east, United States army, acted as grand marshal of the imposing pageant and received a veritable ovation all along the line of march.

In addition to this first of the spectacular parades planned in connection with the celebration of Founders' week, there were a number of incidents and events fraught with historic significance. At night the city was again a blaze of light. Much ingenuity has been shown in the electrical decorations and the display after nightfall is one of dazzling brilliance.

The day began with a salute of 13 guns fired from each of the warships in the harbor and the trumpeting of mounted heralds in medieval costumes on the plaza of the city hall. Events followed fast from that time until one p. m., when the long military column began to move down North Broad street from Susquehanna avenue.

One of the events of the day was of international importance. It was the unveiling of a bronze tablet at the city hall marking the site of the encampment of the French army under Gen. Rochambeau, when it halted in this city en route to join Gen. Washington's forces at Yorktown. Vicomte de Chambrun, secretary of the embassy at Washington, represented the French ambassador and paid a graceful tribute to America.

DYNAMITE IN A SCHOOL.

Evidence of Attempt to Blow Up Building in New York.

New York.—Parents of children who attend public school No. 6, the largest institution of its kind in the Bronx, were greatly excited Monday when a report was given wide circulation that the janitor of the building had found a charge of dynamite, with fuming wires attached, in a section of the foundation walls of the building. About 1,500 children attend this school. The janitor, it was said, discovered on last Friday the evidences of what was believed to be an attempt to blow up the school building. Since then the police have been working in an effort to find the person responsible for the supposed plot and an officer constantly has patrolled the street in front of the school.

REPORT AGAINST COL. STEWART.

Medical Examiners Say He Is Incapacitated for Active Service.

Washington.—The medical board of army officers in the case of Col. William F. Stewart, U. S. A., placed in command of the ungarrisoned post at Fort Grant, Ariz., by President Roosevelt, reported Monday that officer incapacitated from active service. The report follows:

"We are of the opinion that this officer is plainly incapacitated for active service on account of heart disease which he first exhibited 34 years ago." This action does not end the case. Col. Stewart will present testimony and produce witnesses of his own before a retiring board.

LOST IN PHILIPPINES STORM.

ROUND THE CAPITAL

Information and Gossip Picked Up Here and There in Washington.

Lost—Material for One Army Officer

WASHINGTON.—Lost—Somewhere in Virginia, 180 pounds. Finder please return to Maj. Gen. Fred Grant, commander of the department of the east, who will attend to its distribution pro rata among 40 army officers.

If all the detritus, cellular and adipose tissue, cuticle, epidermis and derma matter could be collected from along the route of the test ride that finished at Fort Myer the other day the United States army would be the richer by one highly efficient officer.

All the 40 officers came back, but there was a hiatus somewhere. There had been one member, or his equivalent, left by the way, for the command averaged 4½ pounds lighter to the man than when it started. Forty times 4½ pounds—the lost 180—would make at least one good-sized general or almost two the size of Gen. Funston.

The officers all came back the same day. This much was expected when the ambulance drove into the post empty about 10:30 a. m. There were eager inquiries concerning the whereabouts of the officers, and the driver, waving an arm, said: "Oh, there or thereabouts. We was in a hurry, so we walked back."

Undoubtedly the 40 were "out there somewhere," but they were a long time crossing the finish line.

Everybody was in good spirits at the finish or said he was. There was little doubt about Gen. Grant. He was as hard as nails to start with, having done some 300 miles of saddle work this season.

There was a corps of surgeons in waiting at the hospital for the returned prodigals. A minute examination was made of all the victims, and the results, comprising pulse, temperature, weight and respiration, were all tabulated.

Elkins Won't Stop Marriage to Duke

SENATOR ELKINS will not oppose the marriage of his daughter Katherine to the duke of the Abruzzi after all. The wedding probably will be solemnized in November.

If the duke were as sure of this as is Washington society, he would be spared a lot of worry. As a matter of fact, the duke is about to start for Washington, fearing all the while that the senator will withdraw his consent to the marriage on account of Queen Helena's unrelenting opposition.

The duke fears Senator Elkins will play the part of a high spirited American and endeavor to prevent the marriage, fearing that with the Italian royal family so haughty, his daughter's position at court would be rather equivocal.

Senator Elkins is said to have given the matter careful thought and decided that on account of the duke's high position, the young woman would soon force merited recognition.

Queen Helena is one of the most uncompromising enemies of the marriage. Her majesty, a princess of Montenegro, seems anxious to show her devotion to the dignity of the house of Savoy, which her own marriage imperiled, as disappointed match-making royal mothers saw when it was celebrated.

Save among Republicans and Socialists, public opinion in Rome, according to a dispatch, reflects, distastefully, the royal opposition. The Italians are angry because the Americans, instead of loudly rejoicing that Miss Elkins was to marry into the royal house, have taken an unenthusiastic attitude toward the love affair.

Government Clerk Is Sadder But Wiser

THE down-on-his-luck story of Stephen K. Booth, government clerk, is no more aggravated than many another story that might be told by persons who have come to Washington to settle down in a federal berth for a life of happiness and peace if not luxury and affluence—only to be rudely awakened to a condition of affairs that would cause an ordinary person to turn pessimist even to the point of wishing that there were no such thing as a government.

Considering everything, Stephen fared remarkably well. In the end he came out with a government job; not as good as one as he had builded on, perhaps, but a government job, just the same. Thousands have not survived so fortunately.

Stephen comes from Minnesota. For eight years he labored, if that word can be used properly in connection with the things that a government clerk does in order to draw his salary. He worked in the bureau of the census. Gradually his compensation was increased during that time until it reached the figure of $1,200 a year.

Then Stephen became fired with an ambition. He took a look around him and decided he could do better in some other department of Uncle Sam's service. So he "accepted" a position as a special agent in the immigration service, under the department of justice. This was in May of this year.

Stephen is a man of a family. His new work took him back to Minnesota, which is one of the pathetic features of the story. His headquarters were at St. Paul, where he moved his family after disposing of all his household effects in the capital city. For a short time—less than a month, in fact—he enjoyed his new field of work and his increased salary, for, with the addition to his responsibilities there had also come an increased amount in his semi-monthly pay envelope. In the evenings he was wont to stroll out and mingle again with his old-time cronies. He talked to them knowingly about matters pertaining to the national government, and incidentally impressed on them that perseverance is the only requisite of success under the civil service.

One day Stephen received a letter from Washington. It was couched in formal language, but from reading it Stephen gathered that the government had no longer any need for his services, or words to that effect. The government was very, very sorry, so said the man whose signature was attached to the letter.

It was this way: Congress had failed to grant the amount required and expected for the service, and it would be necessary to dispense with the services of the new appointees. It meant a laying off of a number of employees in each of the 11 districts, into which the service is divided.

Stephen is now back in the bureau of census. His salary is only $1,000 a year, for his place had been filled as soon as he left, and it just happened that Director North had a vacancy in the lower grade. It cost him something to move out to Minnesota and back again, but, taken all in all and in the light of experience had by others which turned out less fortunately, he considers that, at least, it might have been worse.

Great Exhibit of Aerial Craft Planned

THE marked general interest in aeronautics aroused by the Zep peline and other dirigible balloon flights in Europe, aeroplane flights in France, and Baldwin motor balloon and Wright aeroplane tests at Fort Myer, has been noted by officials of the Smithsonian Institution and National museum.

Prof. S. P. Langley, who built the first successful power driven model of an aeroplane, was secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and his various models, the famous Langley aeroplane drome and the numerous aeroplane parts used in his experiments in aerodynamics are now in possession of the institution. These and other exhibits in the institution are being arranged into a special exhibit by George C. Maynard, assistant curator of the National museum.

Octave Chanute, the father of aeronautics in the United States, has offered to build one of his gliding machines for the aeronautical exhibit, and it is understood that the Wright brothers will present the institution with a model of their latest flying machine, and one of their earlier gliding machines.

As soon as the new building for the Smithsonian Institution is completed the aeronautical exhibit will be arranged to show each step in the progress of aerial navigation from the hot-air balloon of Joseph Montgolfier in 1782 to the Wright brothers' aeroplane.

One of the Lillenthal's two-winged gliding machines, a model of Hargrave's compressed air flying machine, which flew 319 feet; Stringfellow's aeroplane model, exhibited in the Crystal Palace, London, in 1856, and numerous motors, propellers, wings, kites and other interesting parts of aeroplanes, are now in possession of the Smithsonian Institution.

MRS. JOHN W. KERN

CHILDREN THE HOBBY OF WIFE OF DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE.

Home Life Is Ideal and Her Club Work Is Devoted to Inducing Women to Aid Little Ones in Many Ways.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Mrs. John W. Kern, wife of the Democratic candidate for vice-president, has a hobby. It is not woman's clubs, although she is a clubwoman; or fashionable dinners, or dogs, or cats, or automobiles. All these are good enough in their way, but not deserving of the all-absorbing attention of the human mind in the opinion of Mrs. Kern. Her hobby is children.

Mrs. Kern primarily is a home woman, a thoughtful wife and tender mother. And after that she bends her strongest influence and devotes the most of her extra time to the children of her home city who are sick and tired and curbed by scant surroundings. She is often found at the Eleanor hospital for sick children. There she is the most welcome visitor and her sympathetic smile has lent encouragement to hundreds of small sufferers.

There is no one more prominent in the free playground movement in Indianapolis than Mrs. Kern. She is the most enthusiastic patron of the fresh air camps.

Mrs. Kern is thoroughly practical in her ideas. Women's clubs, she declares, can do far more good by assisting charities like the children's hospital and the playground movement than by discussing the whyfores and wherefores of Balzac. While she was president of the local council of women she took frequent occasion to emphasize this view, and it bore good fruit.

The home life of Mrs. Kern is ideal. The modest frame house at 1522 North Meridian street has sheltered one of the happiest, chummiest families in the city. There are three children in the household, Miss Julia, a young woman of striking appearance, daughter of Mr. Kern's first wife, and two sons, John Worth Kern, Jr., aged eight, and William Cooper Kern, five years old. The Kern boys are "just kids" of the old-fashioned sort. They are husky, full of life and play, and prefer going barefooted to dressing up.

When W. J. Bryan was entertained at the Kern home last February, Mrs. Kern told the boys they were going to have strawberries, and that they must not display bad manners by saying anything about them. They must appear wholly unconcerned at the sight of strawberries so early in the season. "Well, well," said Mr. Bryan, when the dessert came, "strawberries in February. That is just fine."

The Kern boys looked at their mother in great astonishment; then at their father. They couldn't understand. Afterward one of them slipped up to his mother and said:

"My Bryan has awful bad manners. He spoke about our having strawberries in February. Papa didn't. Papa has better manners than Mr. Bryan."

Mr. Kern is a model father. He takes great pride in his boys and is like a big brother to them. They tell him their troubles with a confidence always that he will promptly straighten them out. And he seldom fails to find a way.

Mr. Kern has been twice married. His eldest son, a volunteer in the United States army, died in Cuba from fever during the Spanish-American war, in 1898.

The nominee himself is a teetotaler. He was a member of the dinner party at which Vice-President Fairbanks served the famous cocktail.

Miss Julia Kern is leader in social and club life, a graduate of Mrs. Sewall's girls' classical school, and took a finishing course in Miss Gardner's school in New York. Her tastes are musical and she is an accomplished pianist. Her favorite sports are golf and tennis.

Like her father, she is of an exceedingly domestic turn and is perhaps most jubilant of all the family over the turn affairs took at Denver.

LICE IN POULTRY

Borax Spray a Safe Preventive—Simple, Cheap, Harmless to Fowls.

"20 Mule Team" Borax was a good thing to rid poultry of lice. I had used so much inflammable Lice killers that my Poultry Houses were regular fire traps. I gave my S. C. W. Leghorn house a good spraying just two months ago. Since I have caught several hens and I found no lice. I am rid of lice and shall continue to use "20 Mule Team" Borax as a spray, also as a wash.

IRRESISTABLE BARGAINS IN FALL SUITS

We desire to express in a few words our gratitude to the people of Lake County for their wonderful response to our invitation to attend our Grand Fall Opening Sale, and to again extend the invitation for Saturday of this week which will be the last and Banner Day of this our first Grand Fall Opening Sale.

No apology we are sure is necessary for any seeming inattention to our patrons on Saturday of last week. Any person visiting our store could readily see that the task of waiting upon the people as they were entitled to and as we desired was beyond all possibility.

We had added to our salesforce all the available experienced assistance that it was possible to secure and all we can now say is to promise better service on Saturday of this week and to say "Thank You" for your kind indulgence and also for your greatly appreciated patronage.

The bargains secured by our many patrons on the First Three Opening Days will again prevail Saturday, and many others will also be added.

Ladies' ready-to-wear suits are our specialty and the latest and most exclusive styles will Saturday be shown at prices that will be most satisfactory to all. No woman can afford to miss this opportunity of seeing our grand display and of satisfying herself that when selection is made of Fall Suit or Coat at our store it embodies all that could be desired in Fit, Workmanship and Style.
